Catherine, who owns the minerals? Do you think you own them? The Osage Nation owns the minerals and the shareholders receive the money from the minerals. You don't own the minerals nor do I.

And it is this sort of thinking that is going to lose you your very interest that you receive quarterly.-----It's this sort of thinking that you have believed for years and why the rest of the "in the know" shareholders are doing all they can to save what is theirs on their own because you just don't get it.-----If you are Osage and you draw any interest at all in the mineral estate, what you draw is a personal property right payable to the Osage TRIBE of Indians, NOT the Osage Nation.-----There is a BIG difference.-----The Osage TRIBE according to federal law (1906 Act) consists of Osage Indians who "own" a headright share in the Osage Mineral Estate.-----The Osage NATION is a defacto government that lays claim to the estate for the benefit of ALL Osages; shareholder and non-shareholder alike.-----Get your calculator out and figure what your check in December would be if it is divided 15 or 20,000 different ways.-----If you're good with that, then keep on thinking they way you do and believing the con men.
